New Year Resolution for the Environment

New year, new beginnings. What better time to start fresh than the beginning of a new year? Many of us earnestly declare a resolution for change with the clang of champagne glasses at midnight.

Why not consider making a change for the environment and help not only yourself but the planet and global community. Something as small as resolving to recycle or use low energy fluorescent light bulbs can have an impact on global warming.

It is through the small actions we take in our every day lives that systemic change will occur. So think about it - what can you resolve to do for the environment this year?
